

Abstract of the Disclosure

An apparatus for and method of searching multimedia contents on a television is provided. The apparatus includes a content searching unit, which searches for multimedia content files from all media connected to the television; a classifying unit, which classifies the multimedia content files into types; a content database, which stores the multimedia content files by types.